

International Endotoxin and Innate Immunity Society

International Endotoxin and Innate Immunity Society (IEIS) MEMBERSHIP 2014

February 2014

Dear Colleague,

This is a request to you to renew or initiate your subscription to the IEIS for 2014 (see benefits below). The membership year runs from January 1 - December 31.

Please complete a renewal form and submit to the Treasurer (Dr. Robert Munford) (see http://ieis.org/Membership_subscription) at your earliest convenience. A letter confirming your renewal, along with a new membership card, will then be issued to you. Please encourage your (fellow) students to take advantage of the low rate of membership and join the IEIS, thereby helping ensure the future health of our Society.

Our society is unique in its broad and integrated focus on the chemistry, biology, physiology, and translational biology of microbe (pathogen)-associated molecular patterns, including but not limited to Gram-negative bacterial endotoxins and their interactions with innate immune recognition and response systems. This breadth and integration will be further accentuated this year in our joint meeting with the Society for Leukocyte Biology, to be held in Salt Lake City on October 23-25, 2014 (see <http://slbieis2014.org/2014/home.aspx>). Note that IEIS membership provides a greater savings in registration to this meeting than the cost of membership and also gives you access to various IEIS awards, including travel awards to your students funded by the IEIS and the Theresa L. Gioannini Women in Science Fund that is being managed in part by the IEIS (see <http://ieis.org/>).

I urge you at the same time to renew or take out a subscription to Innate Immunity (InI), the official Journal our Society, which is indexed, abstracted and published online in several media including MEDLINE and offers a highly visible forum for quality research on all aspects of endotoxin, a rapid turnaround time, no page charges, and 25 free reprints.

Membership Type	Price (US Dollars)
	Without journal	With journal
Active	60.00	170.00
Student	15.00	125.00
Emeritus (age 65 and over)	0.00	114.00
Associate (non-voting)	60.00	170.00

Membership with journal entitles you to a number of benefits, including:

- Free on-line access to the full text of the InI
- Hard-copy InI at a reduced cost (currently $110, a savings of $94)
- IEIIS Newsletter – official IEIIS newspaper containing news about members and meetings, special articles, contact information, available electronically
- Reduced conference registration fees for the Society's biennial conference (at current rates equivalent to 2 years' membership fee) and access to various IEIIS-funded and/or sponsored awards

Please feel free -- if you prefer -- to subscribe for the next two years (2014 and 2015).

Yours sincerely,
Jerrold Weiss, PhD
IEIIS President and Membership Chair
